Have you ever wondered what it is like to be Chairman of the Federal Reserve?

You are invited to attend a special symposium presented by the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco.

The University Symposium is a half-day event held on campus, at no cost to participants. Representatives from the Federal Reserve will be in attendance to conduct the Symposium, which includes engaging presentations from Fed staff on the Purposes and Functions of the Federal Reserve System, Banking Supervision and Regulation, and the conduct of monetary policy.

The University Symposium concludes with a current economic outlook presented by a Fed economist, followed by a real-time Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) simulation, with university students taking on the role of FOMC members and voting on monetary policy and the target federal funds interest rate.

Place: McLaren Center (MCL 252) USF Campus
Date: Friday, November 30, 2007
Time: 6:00 p.m. - 9:00 p.m.

How do I get involved?
For more information about this program, please contact:

USF Professor Sunny Wong
mwong11@usfca.edu
or
SFSU Professor Michael Potepan
mpotepan@sfsu.edu

Program Highlights
• Purposes & Functions of the Federal Reserve
• Challenges and trends in the banking industry
• Current economic forecast presented by a Fed economist
• The Fed’s role in setting monetary policy
• The effect of monetary policy decisions on the U.S. economy
• FOMC simulation, where students take on the role of Fed policy makers

To learn more, visit www.frbsf.org/education/teachers/symposium
Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco • Public Information Department